[1] The percentages for 1871, as given in this table, differ somewhat from those in Table VIII. post, the reason being that these (in order to compare with the mode adopted at former Censuses) have been worked to the general totals, whilst those have been worked to the totals obtaining persons of specified birthplaces only. The latter is the more correct system.—[2] Detailed particulars of these Nationalities, as regards the Census of 1871, are given in Table VII.—[3] Austrians have been included with Germans in all tables comparing 1871 with former Censuses. In other tables the two nationalities have been kept separate.

[1] Including those persons, not children, whose ages were not specified.

[2] Including children whose ages were not returned.

NOTE.—In this table, as in the two preceding, the unspecified as to conjugal condition in 1861 and 1871 have been added to the unmarried in order to make a correct comparison with the Census of 1857, when it was assumed that all unspecified in the householders' schedules were really unmarried. In all tables of this part of the Census, except the four first, a separate column has been introduced for those whose conjugal condition was not returned.

The Colony; Cities, Towns, and Boroughs; Shires and Road Districts; Places outside Local Jurisdiction; Goldfields.—Persons.

TABLE XXV.—Showing the Occupations of Persons of both Sexes, at all Ages and under and over Twenty Years of Age, in the Colony; in the Cities, Towns, and Boroughs; in the Shires and Road Districts; in Places outside Local Jurisdiction; and on the Goldfields, on the 2nd April 1871.

 The numbers in the colony are made up of the sum of those in cities, towns, and boroughs; shires and road districts; and places outside local jurisdiction. The numbers on the goldfields are more or less scattered over all the divisions.
Details of the groups of occupations marked with letters are given for males in Table XXVIII., and for females in Table XXIX., post.
Persons out of employment are included in this Table under their ordinary or former occupation. For the number of unemployed males of each occupation see Table XXX., and for the number of unemployed females of each occupation see Table XXXI., post.
The occupations of persons living in ships are included in the columns for places outside local jurisdiction. The estimated numbers of the migratory population (all unspecified) are included in the same columns.

TABLE XXVII.—Showing the Occupations of Females, at all Ages and under and over Twenty Years of Age, in the Colony; in the Cities, Towns, and Boroughs; in the Shires and Road Districts; in Places outside Local Jurisdiction; and on the Goldfields, on the 2nd April 1871.

 The numbers in the colony are made up of the sum of those in cities, towns, and boroughs; shires and road districts; and places outside local jurisdiction. The numbers on the goldfields are more or less scattered over all the divisions.
Details of the groups of occupations marked with letters are given in Table XXIX., post.
Females out of employment are included in this Table under their ordinary or former occupations. For the number unemployed of each occupation see Table XXXI., post.
The occupations of females living in ships are included in the columns for places outside local jurisdiction. The estimated numbers of the migratory population (all unspecified) are included in the same columns.
